Preface.

The inscriptions in this book were copied from the grave stones in the cemetery formerly belonging to the Gibbonsville congregation of the Reformed church in America. This church was started in 1818 at Gibbonsville which later became West Troy and is now Estervliet, New York. The connection of the cemetery with the old church is now for many years has been very remote, and the Reformed church congregation has not now exist, although it is reported to have had the Presbyterian church in the name of the Jewish Messiah in the line of descendant of the old church. At the time the inscriptions were copied the cemetery in the United States (France) of the cemetery. It has long been abandoned and for purposes of preservation of gross neglect. Some stones were broken and the pieces scattered so that copying was impossible. Other stones had fallen and were wholly or partly covered in earth. The inscriptions were first copied by the Rev. C. P. Evans, Estervliet, in September 1913, and were compared and corrected in the cemetery by the State Library in October and November 1913. They number between 275 and 300. Neighbors reported in November 1913 that steps were under way to move the cemetery.
